

Cuisine ton quartier : des parcours à saveur humaine (Understand Your Neighborhood: Pathways with a human touch) | Winnipeg

ATSA – Quand l'Art Passe à l'Action is a not for profit organization founded in Montréal in 1997 by the deceased artists Pierre Allard and Annie Roy. On a playful and striking tone ATSA creates, produces and distributes locally, nationally and internationally events, transdisciplinary art, and relational works motivated by the desire to educate the population about social, environmental and patrimonial issues.

Welcome to the Patio 340 event

“Cuisine ton quartier : des parcours à saveur humaine” podcasts will be available on site in collaboration with The Franco-Manitoban Culture Centre Friday the 24th of June at Patio 340, at 17:00 (5:00 PM). There will be concerts, discussions, and meetings.

Once there, you'll only need to scan the QR code on each sign to access the immigrants stories. These stories are there to encourage reflections and to inspire the community. Come with an open mind and have fun meeting everyone! Please remember to bring your earbuds/headphones with you for easy listening!

Summary

The « Cuisine ton quartier » podcasts provide you with the opportunity to listen to the stories of francophone immigrants, community organizations, social workers, members of the welcoming society and engaged artists in Montréal and from other places in Canada.

To this day, 7 districts have been targeted by this initiative “des territoires d'inclusion prioritaires” (Priority Inclusion Initiative or TIP) in Montréal and recently, three new districts have been added. In the interest of continuing this project, “Cuisine ton Quartier” is branching out in Winnipeg and in Sudbury to help others understand and bring the challenges of Francophone immigrants to light.

You can experience these podcasts at home via on our site <https://atsa-cuisinetonquartier.ca/> and on different platforms. (Balado Québec, Spotify, Apple Podcasts, Google Podcasts).
